As a practiced leadership coach, I am well aware of the value of coaching. A great coach can help you discover what you truly want and why you are not achieving it. They can help you chart a course for accomplishing your goals and support you in keeping your commitments. In a short time Susan has proven herself to be a great coach. My objectives for participating in her group coaching practice have already been realized in the first few months of the program. I now expect to far exceed my goals.

Susan's insights, commitment, knowledge and focus make her a formidable coach and friend. I highly recommend her to anyone interested in moving forward in their life, their relationships, their business and their goals.
